

Jennifer Wolf

the color of things

Interested in communicating ideas of history, place and nature in her art practice , Jennifer Wolf utilizes a combination of hand ground natural pigments, historic techniques and modern painting mediums to capture the pure essence of color. In Wolf's signature Flow paintings Jennifer keenly controls her handmade paints isolating areas of lacy, textural pattern that overlap spaces of vivid color on canvas mounted wood panels. In her natural dye work, colors are extracted from sustainable tree farms, insect shells and Indigo plants onto silk and accompanied by gold leaf and mineral samples. Jennifer Wolf is from Ventura, CA. She received her BA in Art History from UCLA and her MFA from Otis College of Art and Design. Wolf currently shares studio time between Ventura and Venice Beach, Ca.
